

AudioVocal/AudioInstrumental Course - AVAIC

Spoken-singing voice and Instrumental Sound

from 10th to 12th of December 2021 in Verona (Italy)

An Audio Vocal/Audio Instrumental Course in accordance with the psychophysiological method of listening training of Alfred Tomatis will be held by dr Concetto Campo from 10th to 12th of December 2021 in Verona (Italy).

The AVAIC is based on Tomatis studies on the function of the phonatory organ and the instrumentalist's motricity under maximum performance and minimum effort conditions. The AVAIC helps to put into practice all that Tomatis discovered in his over fifty years of clinical and didactic work with opera singers, instrumentalists, actors, orators and monks who use the Gregorian chant.

The course is open to all those who desire to perfect their own vocal and instrumental potential simultaneously carrying out a personal growth study by working with the voice and with their musical instrument in accordance with the discoveries made and put into practice by Dr. Alfred Tomatis.

It is a practical course that aims at helping the students to use their own vocal and instrumental potential in a more complete manner by means of particular exercises especially formulated by Dr. Tomatis in order to rediscover one's own voice and a more economic and efficient personal motricity when playing an instrument.

The AVAIC helps to use better your body-instrument to produce a better-quality sound with your voice and with your music instrument.

A better use of the body in producing sound leads to a reduction in vocal and playing instrument effort. Consequently, the voice becomes softer and less tired and musical expression is more fluent and simpler. This makes speaking a pleasure while the listener's attention is held longer. The singer increases the possibility of emitting a quality sound with less effort. The musician improves the mastering of the instrument and the quality of the sound produced with less effort.

Principal topics:

Listening posture

The myth of breathing in singing

Reducing vocal effort

Good posture and bony sound

Self-confidence via better voice

Vocal energy and personal energy

Ethnic listening

Audiogenic training

Audio-motor control of your music instrument

Quality of the sounds produced and brain stimulation

The importance of a good pronunciation

Reading aloud

Speaking, singing and playing an instrument with different ethnic listenings

Maintenance and progress exercises
